I also wanted to show ya'll this link to this blog. The blogger had twins back in August and found out much later (after she gave birth) that the herb she took caused her to have the twins. She was reading in a new herb book and turned to Chaste Tree Berry and found this:

"Women of reproductive age must use vitex with caution, since it has been known to stimulate the release of multiple eggs from the ovary, potentially resulting in multiple births.&#8221;

So,...wanted to throw this out there to any brave souls willing to try it. As she said, Yahweh still uses means. :)

scroll down to Nov. 25th, twins anyone? to read what I'm the post.
